There's been a focus on easier configuration and customization by site admins in the latest Tiki releases. This is made possible by CSS variables (custom properties). Many design details can be adjusted at a Tiki website by defining the relevant CSS variables in Look and Feel admin. The code for pagetop navbars in particular has been updated to facilitate this.

New aftermarket themes on the horizon

Customizing via CSS variables, along with support for light, dark, auto, and (coming soon) site-specific color modes, can now do some of what was formerly done by child themes and aftermarket themes.

But for even more visual and layout options for Tiki websites, new aftermarket themes for the latest versions of Tiki are in the pipeline.

Updates of previously released themes as well as new themes will be listed when they are ready, and then can be demoed at the designer’s website and downloaded.
